This map shows boundaries of the Latin Rite dioceses whose bishops belong to the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB). Archdioceses are indicated by capital letters and Ecclesiastical Provinces are grouped by color. USCCB regions are shown within maroon lines and indicated by Roman numerals. Dashed lines show where dioceses cross state lines. This map does not show the Diocese of St. Thomas in the U.S. Virgin Islands, which is part of the Ecclesiastical Province of Washington, or the Archdiocese for the Military Services.

Around the turn of the 19th Century, the two sister companies Franz Mayer of Munich and F.X.Zettler belonged to the worldwide renown and appreciated stained glass studios. Famous for their sophisticated "Munich style", they produced stained glass windows of highest and finest quality for more than 50 cathedrals and thousands of churches just for their American clientele.

The Mayer studio, now owned and operated by the 5th generation, is still strongly obliged to its tradition and heritage: in style, qualities, and values. Together with their crew of artists, glass painters and master craftsmen, they take all their efforts to meet the high quality, details, and transparency of the traditional windows – even nowadays.

The self-conception of quality and workmanship combined with the ability to explore and improve has made Franz Mayer of Munich one of the international leading studios for stained glass, architectural glass and mosaic.

Around the turn of the 19th Century, the two sister companies Franz Mayer of Munich and F.X.Zettler belonged to the worldwide renown and appreciated stained glass studios. Famous for their sophisticated "Munich style", they produced stained glass windows of highest and finest quality for more than 50 cathedrals and thousands of churches just for their American clientele.

The Mayer studio, now owned and operated by the 5th generation, is still strongly obliged to its tradition and heritage: in style, qualities, and values. Together with their crew of artists, glass painters and master craftsmen, they take all their efforts to meet the high quality, details, and transparency of the traditional windows – even nowadays.

The self-conception of quality and workmanship combined with the ability to explore and improve has made Franz Mayer of Munich one of the international leading studios for stained glass, architectural glass and mosaic.

Around the turn of the 19th Century, the two sister companies Franz Mayer of Munich and F.X.Zettler belonged to the worldwide renown and appreciated stained glass studios. Famous for their sophisticated "Munich style", they produced stained glass windows of highest and finest quality for more than 50 cathedrals and thousands of churches just for their American clientele.

The Mayer studio, now owned and operated by the 5th generation, is still strongly obliged to its tradition and heritage: in style, qualities, and values. Together with their crew of artists, glass painters and master craftsmen, they take all their efforts to meet the high quality, details, and transparency of the traditional windows – even nowadays.

The self-conception of quality and workmanship combined with the ability to explore and improve has made Franz Mayer of Munich one of the international leading studios for stained glass, architectural glass and mosaic.

Type of Business:

Through the efforts of Venerable Michael McGivney, a 30-year-old parish priest, and his parishioners at St. Mary's Church in New Haven, the Connecticut legislature officially chartered the Knights of Columbus as a fraternal benefit society March 29, 1882. Though the organization has grown to more than 14,000 councils and 1.8 million members across the United States, Canada, Philippines, Mexico, Poland, the Caribbean and Central America, it has been true to its founding principles of charity, unity and fraternity for 131 years.

The foresight of Father McGivney, whose cause for sainthood is being investigated by the Holy See, brought about one of the world's foremost Catholic lay organizations. The Knights of Columbus is a model of Christian service to charitable causes in local communities and across the world. Last year, Knights contributed more than $158 million and 70 million volunteer service hours to worthy causes across the globe. Throughout the last decade, the totals exceed $1.436 billion and 664 million hours of service to charity.
